DROUGHT ANGLES BLESS EKKA

By William B.

Drought Angels, a charity that supports farmers whose lives have been turned upside down by natural disasters, is at the Ekka this year seeking support and donations.

Drought Angels was founded six years ago, in response to a drought that is still devastating parts of Queensland today.

Some of the Drought Angels volunteers are farmers who have lived in drought areas.

"Drought affected farmers can receive Visa cards that they can use in their local businesses," a volunteer said.

"We also give fuel cards, we give vouchers for groceries, and sometimes we might be able to provide them with a hamper which has some personal provisions or food."

Farmers can also be provided with stock food to help their livestock survive.

People wanting to donate to this community charity can find more information at:
