Aussie FMX Freestyle Firestorm

By Arabella

The Aussie FMX Freestyle Firestorm performances took place every evening of the Ekka, between 7:15 pm and 7:40 pm.

Australia's Freestyle motor riders soared an incredible 75 feet into the air, flipping, twisting, doing heel-clickers, seat grabs, back-flips, and much more - to give the crowd a rush of adrenaline.

One moment the talented daredevil riders were silhouettes in the beautiful Brisbane night sky, the next they flew past in a blur of neon, before launching into aerial mayhem that left the audience wide-eyed and gasping for breath.

"I think it's the closest feeling you ever get to flying, you really do feel like you're just up there you've got all the time in the world and it's amazing to look around and take it all in," said Aussie FMX freestyler, Brodie Carmichael.

"I think it's 90% mental, so having a lot of confidence in yourself, and then I think learning how to practice is a big part of it too. So watching people studying it and breaking down certain tricks into small parts is a big part of it, definitely," said Brodie.

Hold on tight - Aussie FMX left the audience pinned to the edge of their seat and begging for one more jaw dropping jump.
